TO RECEIVE PRINCE

Fighting Bob Expected to Meet
Louis of Battenberg.

NORTH ATLANTIC SQUADRON

Understood That Powerful Fleet Has
Been Assigned to Meet and Show
Courtesies to the Visiting English men While in This Section.

According to information received at Old Point, Prince Louis of Battenberg, who is in command of the Flying Squadron of the English navy, will reach Hampton Roads with his squadron early in November.

The coming visit of Prince Louis and his squadron is eliciting great interest in army and navy circles and it is said the Prince will be shown every courtesy while in the States.

It is understood that the North Atlantic Squadron, Admiral Robley D. Evans, has been assigned to meet the Englishman when he comes to Hampton Roads, and will then escort the flying squadron to Annapolis and New York.

The battleship Iowa, a member of the North Atlantic Squadron, is expected in Hampton Roads, within the next ten days, but the remaining ships of the squadron will not drop down here before October.

Naturally much preparation for the visit of the English squadron will be made around Fort Monroe, as it is likely that the prince will wish to inspect the Virginia fort before proceeding to Annapolis, from which point he will go to New York, and thence will visit Washington.

Further than the mere fact that the flying squadron will come to the roads early in November nothing is known of the plans for entertaining the Englishman.

Mr. Worham Improving.
News from York county yesterday was to the effect that Mr. John E. Worham, who has been ill with typhoid fever in his home in Grafton, is now improving.
